STATEMENT ON DUPLICATE IMAGES

This reel of microfilm contains material which has paper color changes, stains, or illustrations (some of which may appear on pages mixed with printed text). In order to ensure that all text and illustrations are legible, exposure settings must be changed. Therefore, when text and illustrations exist in a single image or when material backgrounds differ, such frames may need to be exposed twice.

The first exposure reflects the camera operator's best effort to capture the majority of the text; the second exposure reflects the camera operator's best effort to capture illustrative material or the remaining text. It is hoped that this practice will result in a microfilm product that fully serves the needs of most researchers.
